1. In August, T'unghua Airfield was at Santaokou, 130 Chinese li southwest of T'unghua (125-27, 41-43). Major General Rokotikov is commander of ground troops in that area. The field is smaller than the Mukden field and larger than the fields at Chiamussu and Changchun. The troops stationed there are Chinese Communist, North Korean, Soviet, Japanese and Polish, and are members of the International Volunteer Army. Half of the air force personnel at the field were trained at the Soviet Air Academy or in other Soviet schools. The pilots' training is preparatory to combat against the United Nations.

After the completion of these rear area fields, the fields at K'isong (125-43, 39-41 Kanggye (126-36, 40-58), P'ungjong (126-02, 38-57), Maengsan (126-30, 39-40), and Yongchun (127-14, 39-32) are to be used as advance bases for the Chinese Communist Air Force.
